Nadezhda Azhgikhina lives in Moscow, Russia. She graduated from the Faculty of Journalism in Moscow State University, and has since 2002 worked as Executive Secretary of the Russian Union of Journalists. Dr. Azhgikhina has written and edited 17 books on cultural and gender issues, freedom of expression, media development, and human rights. She worked for and extensively published in “Independent Gazette,” “Ogonyok,” and other media during the time of Glasnost and the Yeltsin era. Dr. Azhgikhina is a member of PEN Club and the Gender Council of the International Federation of Journalists. She founded the “Citizen club” in Russia and the Association of Women Journalists.

On

The Russian Media, Freedom of the Press, and Human Rights

Date: Thursday, October 21
1:00-2:30
Gladfelter Hall, 9th Floor, Russell Weigley Room

Contact rimmerma@temple.edu for further details