Professor Naoko Wake will discuss the effects of war in a presentation on the little-known history of Japanese-American and Korean-American survivors of the atomic bombs dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki in 1945. By focusing on these survivors’ activism during the Asian American civil rights movement, she will illuminate the history of the Bomb by uncovering its influence on often neglected female minorities even as it encourages a reexamination of international conflicts.

March 13, 2014
4 PM
9th Fl. Gladfelter Weigley Room

CENFAD is hosting this event in conjunction with One Book, One Philadelphia, a joint project of the Mayor’s Office and the Free Library of Philadelphia