INDIA AND THE WORLD
from the Great War to the Cold War
1-4:30 pm, Wednesday, October 21, 2009
Temple University
Russell F. Weigley Room, 9th Floor, Gladfelter Hall

The Center for the Study of Force and Diplomacy and the New India Forum at Temple invite you to a workshop on the international and transnational dimensions of Indian history in the 20th century world.

Opening Remarks:

Frank Costigliola
President, Society for the History of American Foreign Relations (SHAFR)
History, University of Connecticut

Discussants:

Daud Ali
South Asian Studies,
University of Pennsylvania

David C. Engerman
History, Brandeis University

Panelists:

Benjamin Zachariah, Zentrum Moderner Orient

Carolien Stolte, University of Leiden

Franziska Roy, University of Warwick

Ali Raza, Oxford University

Michele Louro, Temple University

This workshop is made possible by the support of the Center for the Study of Force and Diplomacy (CENFAD); New India Forum at Temple; Center for Humanities at Temple (CHAT); College of Liberal Arts at Temple University (CLA); South Asian Studies Department, University of Pennsylvania; and the South Asia Center, University of Pennsylvania.

For more information, please contact Michele Louro at mlangfor@temple.edu