“Today’s Army—Is It Your Bag?” The Market, the Citizen, and the Making of the All-Volunteer Army

A talk with Dr. Beth Bailey

Beth Bailey, professor of history at Temple University, is a social/cultural historian of the 20th century United States. Her books include From Front Porch to Back Seat: Courtship in 20th Century America, The First Strange Place: Race and Sex in World War II Hawaii (co-authored with David Farber), and Sex in the Heartland. She is also co-author of the American history survey text, A People and a Nation. Bailey is currently working on a social/cultural history of recruiting the all-volunteer army, which has been supported by fellowships from the Woodrow Wilson Center for International Studies and the National Endowment for the Humanities.
